

“Summer Institute for Educators”

Amberton University is a fully accredited, private, non-denominational, Christian institution with locations at 1700 Eastgate Drive in Garland and 3880 Parkwood Blvd in Frisco. Amberton offers undergraduate and graduate programs exclusively to working adults. The University has 40 years of meeting the needs of the mature learner through its nationally recognized programs. This summer, Amberton is presenting a special “Summer Institute for Educators” at the Garland Campus. The Institute lasts for 5 weeks (June 13 through July 14) and features graduate courses designed to meet the needs of today’s educators. Classes meet twice weekly for four hours. As an added incentive, the University is awarding a scholarship to each eligible new student making the cost per course only $405.00 plus textbooks. Scholarships are on a first-come/first-served basis.

Students have the option of enrolling in one or two of the following graduate-level courses:

Course Descriptions:

Counseling in Schools – CSL6779

The course presents a comprehensive review of counseling in schools. Students will define the roles and functions of school counselors. Emphasis is on a learner-centered process that includes organizing, planning, designing, implementing, and evaluating a comprehensive counseling and guidance program. The course also covers cultural and diversity issues within the school environment as well as professional, ethical, and legal issues related to school counseling.

Theories/Methods of Counseling – CSL6782

The course presents the philosophical and theoretical bases of the helping process. Emphasis is placed on understanding the major counseling theories, basic helping skills, and applications to diverse populations. Techniques and methods from each counseling perspective will be demonstrated and practiced under faculty supervision. A major focus is on the application of the theories and methods of individual, group, and family counseling in schools and mental health settings. The course also includes professional, ethical, and legal issues related specifically to the counseling and guidance process.

Registration:

To register, you must be an educator (teacher, counselor, principal or administrator) currently employed in a school district.
